
IWA Water and Development Congress

Dossier de la rédaction de H2o
February 2023

With an overarching theme of water, sanitation, and climate resilience - keys to a water-wise future, the 2023 edition will present solutions spanning water and sanitation services, the role of water in urban areas, the links between cities and basins, and the opportunities to achieve climate resilience.

Huge investments are being directed towards water and sanitation infrastructure, particularly in the Global South, and the event will encourage participants to share knowledge on innovations in science and practice, highlighting the opportunities of securing new and effective solutions in water and sanitation policy, technology, and management. The Water and Development Congress & Exhibition 2023 will deliver a comprehensive programme focused on the water-related needs of low- and middle-income countries.

The call for submissions is available for download. Proposals can now be submitted online until 30 April 2023.

IWA Water and Development Congress